

Mini Jamboree at Lake Hudson

DNR hosts Stair District Library's Summer Reading Program

READY, AIM, SMILE—Parks and Recreation Ranger Jim Knox stands by as Ashley Joughin assists her son Maddox at the archery station last week at Lake Hudson State Recreation Area. The Department of Natural Resources provided five activities for Stair District Library Summer Reading Program participants and the library provided snacks.

SNACK TIME—Library staff members Tommy McVay and Pam Hollstein hand out snack bags to participants.

STORYWALK—Children followed a meandering trail to read "The Lorax" at the Story Walk event. Ben Ruse (left) looks down the path as Bowen Baumgartner reads.

SHOOTING RANGE—Bill Fischer of Pheasants Forever instructed children in how to shoot a BB gun.

BIRD WATCHING—DNR Explorer Guide Kiki Dunigan talks to a group about birds. Children learned how to identify a variety of birds and then each made their own turkey call using a plastic cup, a piece of sponge and dental floss.

CAMPING OUT—Cyndee's Circle of Friends Day Care traveled as a group from station to station. Children experienced the inside of tents and played a game at the Camping station. Today's library program features the Flying Aces Frisbee show. Registered Summer Reading Program participants will receive a glow-in-the-dark Frisbee following the show. Next Wednesday Lori Fithian brings her high-energy Drummunity program to the library at 11 a.m.; community members are invited to attend. The Summer Reading Program is funded almost entirely by a grant from the Lenawee Youth Council through the Lenawee Education Foundation.
